Abstract

The issue of contracts is considered one of the main topics for achieving economic development, especially those that concern women's financial rights. The greatest work that jurists have dealt with is the social issues that came after their interest in ideological issues Where he linked the devotional matter to his reassurance with the presence of money, so when money was available, worship was reassuring, and accordingly, the jurists were preoccupied with concluding contracts and the rights that result from them. The woman is a victim in her past ages and before Islam under the jurisprudence of human beings without evaluating her and no one made her equal with men just as Islam gave her her right. She is humiliated, she is bought and sold, and she has no right to claim it. Based on this, my study came to show what Islam has shown that women have rights over parents, husband, children, and brothers, and even they are guaranteed by the state, Her money, which, if obtained, is a result of investment in economic, cultural, and even media and political activities, and her money is considered a basic pillar for the growth of the country's economy, especially the Islamic countries, as the financial contracts resulting from divorce are considered a primary goal for the positive impact on the economic situation, and when the desired goal of the contracts is achieved, it must be An interest in obtaining women's money that results from divorce, and the researcher has seriously sought to consult the supervising professor (Dr. Iyad Muhammad Hamed) to take note of all the clauses of the contracts so that the research will be in the best way that benefits people, especially that information and methods of eliciting the concept of the contract for its exploitation in economic development. I ask success.
