Abstract

The graduation of the branches on the fundamentals is an important and great science, because it constitutes an intermediary between the sciences of jurisprudence and the principles of jurisprudence and connects them and shows the fruit of the science of principles by linking the branches derived from the foundational rules.

In view of this importance, I decided to deal with an aspect of the fundamentalist graduation in financial transactions through the book of Imam al-Malibari (may God Almighty have mercy on him.)

It is no secret to those with a core that this topic is of great importance, as it combines two great sciences, which are jurisprudence and principles, as it is the control for the process of diligence and in the deduction of legal rulings, and through it the reasons for the differences of scholars in opinions and doctrines are known, and through it the scholars continue to direct people to what is emerging from calamities, accidents and developments in peoples life.

The selection of the above research topic had reasons; The most important of which is: Our need for this great knowledge, knowledge of the correct sayings, and knowledge of the reasons for the difference in the opinions of the jurists. And linking the theoretical side with the applied side by graduating the jurisprudential branches from their origins. And the desire to serve jurisprudence and its principles in this field.

In order to prepare this research, I faced many difficulties, including: the lack of printed sources that translated the life of Imam al-Malibari (may God Almighty have mercy on him). And the absence of controls and conditions in writing regarding the subject of graduating the branches on the assets.
